USD OFFERS EDUCATION COURSES DURING INTERSESSION

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The University of San Diego January Intersession is offering four courses of interest to administrators and teachers in San Diego. The three-week program for 3 units of academic credit (or students may audit) offers courses both days and evenings. Some courses are graduate, some undergraduate. For course information call USD 291-6480, ext. 221, or write the Intersession Office, USD, Founders Hall 108, San Diego, 92110.

Dr. Joseph C. Rost is offering Education 256, "Collective Negotiations in Education," emphasizing the collective bargaining process - its conceptual framework, legal and political bases in California and the nation. Current practices and future trends are discussed. Simulation of negotiations strategies in resolving bargaining impasses in the public sector. The course is offered certain evenings and on certain Saturdays and Sundays.

Sociology 197, "Learner Be Darned: Explorations in Educational Sociology," is to be taught by Dr. Eugene M. Labovitz, Monday through Friday from 9 to 12. The class meets three times a week in classroom, with other meetings for field trips to local schools. Examination of the traditional, innovative and radical conceptions of education will be made from a sociological perspective through readings, the trips, lectures and small group discussions.
